

I think the do not call list should be left as it is, These calls can be so numerous at times that it really can be a problem.